Speaker Profile

Linus Tham

Mr Linus Tham holds the appointment of Group Chief Corporate Development Officer of the National Healthcare Group and is responsible for the corporate functions of planning, organizational development, business and process developments, operation streamlining and project developments.

Linus is concurrently the Chief Operating Officer for Regional Health. The Regional Health System is MOH's new approach towards looking after the health, and not just the healthcare of the people of Singapore. NHG is the nation's central Regional Health System, with Tan Tock Seng Hospital as the main acute general hospital and responsible for the health of 1.4 million residents living in the central part of Singapore.

In his role as COO (RH), Linus is responsible for developing and implementing programs that would better look after the needs of the population even when they are not ill or physically in the clinic or hospitals. The goal is to provide accessible, affordable and quality health care to the population, so as to achieve NHG's vision of Adding Years of Healthy Life to the People of Singapore.
